

Clinical Trials Data Transparency Toolkit

Project Scope

This project is exploring the evolving global landscape of clinical trial transparency and will showcase the existing and emerging global requirements and best practices relating to clinical study submission requirements. The team have produced a poster on the global view of clinical trial transparency and disclosure events for a single study and product submissions which they presented at CSS 2018. This lead the team to develop a white paper investigating the evolving global landscape of clinical trial transparency and disclosure, focusing on submission related requirements.
